From both a life and organizational perspective, Emotional Intelligence is changing our concept of “being smart.” Emotional Intelligence (EQ), how we handle ourselves and our relationships—coupled with our intelligence (IQ), determine life and career success. Our emotions are contagious and play a crucial role in our personal effectiveness and success. We excel not just through our “Skills & Smarts,” but how we “Connect” with others. In this exciting, high-impact, high-energy presentation, Greg Coker outlines the four components of being “Emotionally Intelligent” while providing a blueprint for individual, team and organizational excellence.
